

Noah's Message to Jacob Windham — Hobbs Dealership

Context: Jacob saw the Wigington Properties website Chad built and reached out to Noah asking if they could build something for Hobbs. This is a warm inbound — the door is already open. Noah does not need to sell. He just needs to confirm, set the meeting, and show up ready.

TEXT / DM VERSION

(Short, warm, confident — Noah's voice. Send this first.)

Jacob — appreciate you reaching out, man. Yes, absolutely — that's exactly what we do. The same guy who built my site, Chad Dozier, he's my technology partner and we've already put together a full system built specifically for dealership finance offices. It goes way beyond a website.

I'd love to sit down with you and show you what we've got — 15 minutes is all it takes. You'll see the whole thing running live. When works for you this week?

FOLLOW-UP TEXT

(Send this after he responds — when setting the meeting)

Perfect. We'll come ready to walk you through it deal by deal — from the customer's first click on the website all the way to a signed finance package. You're going to like what you see.

See you [day/time]. — Noah

Subject: Re: Website / Finance System — Let's Set a Time, Jacob

Jacob,

*Good hearing from you — glad the site caught your attention.
That's exactly the kind of work we do.*

To answer your question: yes, we can absolutely build something for Hobbs. In fact, Chad and I have already put together a full platform designed specifically for dealership finance offices — not just a website. It handles the entire deal flow: online credit applications, automated finance document assembly, OFAC and compliance checks, e-sign, and a full F&I pipeline from first lead to funded deal. Nothing gets re-keyed. Everything runs clean.

I'd rather show you than describe it. Can we find 15 minutes this week? I'll walk you through it live — right there at Hobbs if that works for you.

Talk soon,

WHAT NOAH SAYS IN THE ROOM

(Talking points — keep it simple)

Opening — Noah's intro (60 seconds max):

“Jacob, I appreciate you reaching out. When you saw the website and asked if we could do something for Hobbs — I went straight to Chad and said let's build it. He's the developer, I'm the guy who knows the people. Between the two of us we've got everything covered. Let me show you what we put together."

Then hand it to Chad or pull up the deck on the phone.

Noah's role in the room:

- Make the intro and set the tone — warm, confident, no pressure
- Let the demo do the talking
- If Jacob asks about cost — *"We'll get you a full breakdown after you've seen the system. Let's make sure it's the right fit first."
- If Jacob asks about timeline — *"Chad can speak to that — but we move fast."

5 RULES FOR THIS MEETING

- 1. Do NOT show the cost breakdown. Jacob asked about the website — let him see the full system first. Numbers come after he's sold on the value.
- 2. Do NOT explain how it's built. He doesn't need to know the infrastructure. He needs to know it works and it's fast.
- 3. Do NOT be desperate. Jacob came to Noah. The leverage is on our side. Be confident, be warm, let the work speak.

4. Do NOT oversell. Show the demo. Answer his questions. Ask him what his biggest pain point on the finance desk is. Let him talk.
 5. One ask at the end: “Does this make sense for Hobbs? If it does, we can move fast.”
